Dear Wicasa Community,

As we step into August, we have two significant occasions to celebrate and reflect upon.

Independence Day – August 15

On August 15, we commemorate the day when India achieved independence in 1947. This day is a reminder of the sacrifices made by countless individuals who fought for our freedom. Let's take this opportunity to honor their legacy by committing ourselves to the values of justice, liberty, and equality. Join us in the celebrations, and let's collectively pledge to contribute towards the progress and prosperity of our nation.

World Sanskrit Day – August 20

August 20 marks World Sanskrit Day, a day dedicated to celebrating the ancient and classical language of Sanskrit. Sanskrit is not only the language of our rich heritage but also a key to understanding many of our ancient texts, including Vedas and Upanishads. On this day, let's explore the beauty of Sanskrit, its literature, and its contributions to various fields of knowledge. Embrace this opportunity to learn and promote this timeless language that forms a crucial part of our cultural identity.

Let's come together to celebrate these important occasions with pride and enthusiasm.

The Golden Journey Of Gold – One Being Sovereign Gold' (SGB)

Jay Kalpesh Barai
WR00709855
CA FINAL STUDENT

Greetings Readers,

You might have heard of many investment options for the financial wellness & Wealth creation, be it Mutual funds, Time - Deposits, Equity Market or Real e-state. Different kinds of investors go with different investment options based on their inclination and perception of Investment bracket. But the conventional & largely accepted of all being investment in 'Gold'.

GOLD!! What comes the first thing in our mind thinking for gold?

A Precious metal being a good investment option, the one which have always been in upswing trend comparing its historical numbers. The Journey of GOLD has always been the one with golden feathers. Investors have always been fortunate with deployment of their investments in gold.

One such form of Gold investment is investment in Sovereign Gold Bond (SGB). SGB abbreviation of SOVERIEGN GOLD BOND refers to security in a form of 'BOND' denominating investment in grams of gold. A SGB is a good investment substitute of holding the gold in physical form. It is held in the dematerialized form in Demat A/c's and can also be held in the form of Physical Bond Certificate.

This takes away the cons of storing the physical gold in lockers & Safe. Also, the risk of Duplicate gold or Compromised quality of gold can be overcome. This Bonds can be subscribed in denomination of 1 gram of gold and its multiples (X grams) thereof. This way investment in SGB reflects corresponding Quantity (grams) of Gold investment.

The Sovereign gold bond is a BOND format of gold issued by the Sovereign (a Supreme ruler/a King or Queen) of nation i.e. Government. The SGB is issued by Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on behalf of Government of India (GOI).

Can I also invest in Sovereign Gold Bond (SGB)?

- Any Individuals,
- HUF's,
- Trusts,
- Universities & Charitable Institutions

Defined under the FEMA Act, 1999 are eligible to invest in SGB.

What is the issue price/Payment mode of SGB?

The issue Price is the nominal Value of Gold Bond decided on the basis of Simple average of (Closing Price of gold of 999 Purity) of the last 3 business days of the week preceding the subscription period, which is published by the Indian Bullion and Jewelers Association limited. The issue price can be paid in cash (Maximum of Rs. 20,000), demand draft, Cheque as well as through electronic mode (online mode). With Online mode discount of Rs 50/Gram is given on Nominal Value, compared to When Purchased through Cash.

What is the lock-in Period for my investment in SGB?

The Sovereign Gold Bonds are issued for the tenure of 8 years with an early Encashment/redemption option after 5 Years from the date of issue on Interest Payment dates. However, the investor also has the Option to trade the SGB in the Open Market through Security exchanges before maturity of the SGB, where indexation benefits are also available to long term capital gains arising to any person on transfer of bond.

Can I Subscribe for any Quantity of SGB?

Well, there's prescribed limit on the Quantity (grams) of Sovereign Gold Bonds that can be subscribed by the Different Class of Investors.

Category of Investor- Limit to Subscribe (in Grams)

Ø Individuals- 4 Kgs

Ø HUF's- 4 Kgs

Ø Trusts & Similar Entities- 20 Kgs

The above ceiling has been fixed on a fiscal year basis (i.e. April-March), which means this limit is for a one Financial year. The SGB's can also be Jointly Held and in case of Joint Holding, the investment limit of 4 Kgs will be applied to the first applicant only.

So we might think that the only difference between investment in Sovereign gold bond (SGB) over investment in physical gold is the difference of Storing of physical gold altered with demat form and the discount of Rs. 50/Gram on Online Payment for Purchase of SGB.

Sovereign Gold Bonds

SGB

Well, there's much more than that.

- The SGB Provides financial reward in the form of fixed interest rate @ 2.5% P.a. Where interest is credited semi – annually (Another Compounding benefit) in Comparison with the investment in Physical gold, where no Interest income can be earned.
- The SGB can also be offered as a collateral security for loans from Banks, NBFC's and Financial Institutions. Just like Offering/Pledging the physical Gold as a security collateral for Loan/Gold Loan.
- Not just that, another add on benefit being the Capital Gain on redemption of SGB on maturity. That is Capital Gains Tax arising on redemption of SGB to an Individual is EXEMPT, which makes it much attractive for the long term investors.

On maturity, bonds are redeemed at the prevailing market rate along with the due interest, this way benefits of SGB truly seems like a gold treasure ensuring recurring interest earnings as well as Tax Exemption on maturity proceedings. Therefore, it is rightly a good investment switch to the physical gold with comparatively lesser risk exposure at good yield to investors.

Hope You might have found this reading insightful.

Thank you!! For reading..

DATA IS THE NEW OIL

VAJA JAYESH
WRO0721294
CA FINAL STUDENT

Meaning:

- The burning discussion of data being the new oil has created space for plenty of discussions. Data helps to create insights that yield valuable results as well as helps companies make more efficient and organized decisions. This in return helps to build a better strategy.
- Tons of data are created on an everyday basis that help in making impactful business decisions that ultimately influence industries.
- The notion of “data is the new oil” relates to the importance of two of the most valuable resources we have today. Raw data is of no use on its own. However, true value addition is possible when data is gathered daily, accumulated together, and connected with other data that is relevant and significant.
- We know that oil is one of the most important resources for humanity. However, in this era of the fourth industrial revolution, which involves innovation, technology and artificial intelligence, a new oil has emerged. Data is the new oil of the digital era.

“Information is the oil of the 21st century, and analytics is the combustion engine.” — Peter Sondergaard, 2011”

Why Data is the New Oil?

1.) Imagine you have something incredibly valuable, like oil, that powers many things in the world. Well, in today's digital age, information (data) is just as valuable. Here's why we say "Data is the new oil" in simpler terms:

- Essential Resource: Oil used to be crucial for energy, and data is now essential for technology and business. Companies and governments use data to make things work, just like we needed oil for machines.
- Drives Innovation: Like oil fueled inventions in the past, data fuels new ideas and inventions today. It helps us create better technology, find solutions to problems, and make our lives easier.

- Economic Power: Countries with a lot of oil used to be powerful. Now, those with a lot of data hold economic power. Businesses can thrive by using data smartly to make good decisions.
- Identify the problems early: Organisations can take up measures to mitigate the risks at a much early stage. Working correctly with the data allows the users to identify the problems and make the organisations proactive rather than reactive. This is why data is the new oil.
- Strategic Advantage: Just as controlling oil was strategically important, having lots of useful data gives companies and countries an advantage. They can plan better, understand what people need, and stay ahead of the competition.
- Environmental Impact: Oil had environmental challenges, and now data does too. Storing and using data requires a lot of energy. Finding sustainable ways to handle data is becoming as important as finding eco-friendly ways to use oil was.
- Ownership Matters: Like owning oil reserves was a big deal, having control over valuable data is a big deal now. People want to know who owns and uses their data, just like countries wanted control over their oil.

2.) Data in its usable format is the standard way to use it, just like oil. Crude oil can be converted to petroleum oil for refineries to use them. Similarly, raw data should be refined in such a way that it is easy to use for statistical purposes and otherwise. There could be a minor or major flaw in the data that flows downstream from business analytics.

- Raw data might miss essential chunks of information.
- It is not possible for all raw data to be used for predictive analysis.
- Data is of no use until refining removes all factual inaccuracies.

3.) Data has become the most valuable resource on the planet. However, it needs to be ethically extracted, refined, distributed and monetized. Like the way oil has driven growth and produced wealth for powerful nations, the next wave of growth will be driven by data.

"Data is the new oil, fuelling the engines of innovation, powering the digital economy, and driving the transformative force that propels us into a future defined by insights, efficiency, and endless possibilities."
